“Who’s Watching Washington:
How YOU Can Become an Education Change Agent!”

Baffled by the news of what’s happening in Washington? Myrna Mandlawitz, M.Ed, J.D., CASE Legislative Consultant, is here to explain it all...well, at least some of it! She will entertain you about the latest from Congress and the Administration—what’s current in special and general education, Medicaid and health care, education funding, and some “hot” legal issues. Myrna will also provide the how-to of becoming an agent of change for education and get you started on planning your own education advocacy campaign. Come prepared to expand your knowledge and actively participate in this exciting workshop.

As president of MRM Associates, LLC, Myrna Mandlawitz serves as legislative consultant to the Council of Administrators of Special Education (CASE) and four other national organizations. She has worked in Washington for 25 years as a consultant/lobbyist on special and general education policy and legislation and has worked on numerous coalitions and committees affecting educational change. She previously held the position of Director of Government Relations for the National Association of State Directors of Special Education. She spent 14 years in the classroom as a teacher and assisted in the development of state-level programs. She is the author of numerous special education and legal publications.

Audience: Special Ed and General Ed Administrators, consultants, teachers, school psychologists, agency personnel, school district attorneys, parent advocates, and others who serve children with disabilities.
